

UpdateStar Premium Edition 11 released

UpdateStar Premium Edition 11 is the latest product update in the portfolio of products of Berlin-based UpdateStar. Software updates are important for every computer and fix security and other problems caused by outdated software. UpdateStar 11 protects users from these problems. The included service provides users with small and major updates for installed software on their computers for more than 1.7 million programs.

Berlin, March 4, 2016 – UpdateStar, a leading German software product and services provider with more than 10 million monthly users, announces the release of UpdateStar Premium Edition 11. The new version informs about available updates for the installed software on a computer.

With numerous published updates and software patches and an average number of 75 software applications on typical computers it is impossible for a user to manually search for updates and keep all software installations up-to-date. The included service delivers newly available software and downloads on a daily basis.

UpdateStar Premium 11 informs the user about available updates. Users can import and install complete software setups to equip their computers with software. These Packs are freely available on the UpdateStar website.

UpdateStar also delivers tens of thousands of downloads. UpdateStar uses secure original manufacturer sources for the provided downloads.

If a new update is available, UpdateStar allows users to download and install the software to keep the software setup up to date. This minimizes security risks often caused by outdated software. That is why software updates are important or even critical in case of updates made available by the publishers for security reasons.
