

Find lost software licenses on your computer

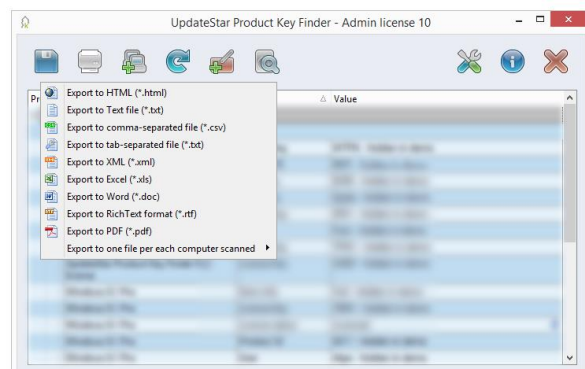

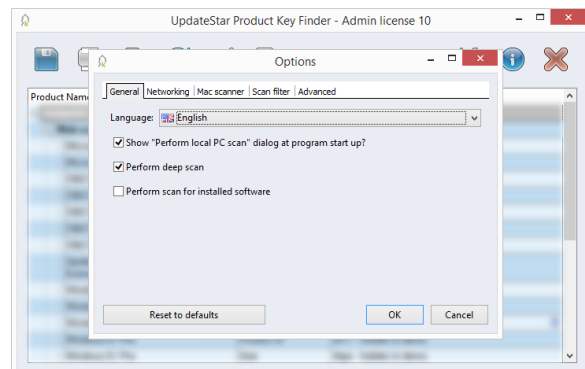

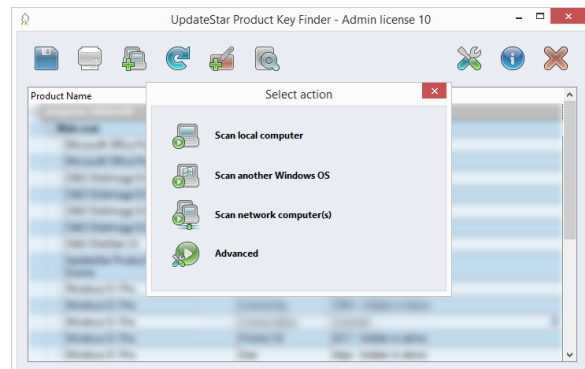

Why UpdateStar Product Key Finder? Because losing license information is an annoying and expensive experience. Home users and enterprise users alike use Product Key Finder, as it finds license information and keys for 6,500 software vendors and products.

How it works!

Product Key Finder helps to safeguard licenses and activation keys for software products installed on local computers or remote network computers. Because users paid for their software products and licenses, they should let Product Key Finder find and export them. License information can be exported (Word, Excel, PDF, HTML, CSV and XML) or printed from within Product Key Finder. Users can now store these in a safe place for backup reasons. Product Key Finder is typically being used by home users as well as corporate administrators.

Search license information the smart way

Product Key Finder puts an end to wasted time trying to find software product license information on computers. It recovers and backups software licenses and prevents a loss of expensive licenses. The easy to use interface scans, collects, displays and exports license information from your computer. Product Key Finder accurately searches for software license information on local computers as well as network computers. The signature database gets updated frequently and additional program licensing definitions are added on a daily basis to provide an up-to-date service.

Use cases

Users typically use Product Key Finder for one of the following three reasons:

1 Recover supposedly lost license information on a computer

In case of a license loss emergency Product Key Finder can help. Let it scan for licenses on the computer and it will find the stored license information. Besides scanning your local computer you can scan remote network computers.

2 Find and backup license information for precaution reasons

Most users use Product Key Finder to search, find and backup the license information stored on their computers. This way they can rest assured, as they have created a backup of their valuable license information.

3 Enterprise license management

Enterprise users often use Product Key Finder to get an overview of licenses used on all corporate computers. This can be an important help to find out more with regards to over or under licensed software.

Return on investment

Purchasing Product Key Finder easily creates a return on investment most of the time with the first license recovered. As it also helps prevent future license loss, it saves money. It prevents future repurchases of the same software licenses.

And by helping to get a clear view of licenses being used it can save a company a lot of money, as being over licensed is as well as expensive as being under licensed.

Important features

- Easy to use interface scans, collects, displays and exports license information from your computer
- Accurately searches for software license information on your local computer and network computers
- The database supports 6,500 software vendors and products including Microsoft Windows, Microsoft Office, Adobe products, O&O Software products, Acronis products, Electronic Arts games, WinZip products, Nero products and many more

Pricing & Licensing

Product Key Finder is available as stand-alone license and as a 3 PC license. Corporate users use our volume licensing options. Single users can get a 1 PC license for $29.95. UpdateStar Product Key Finder is available for purchase online in the UpdateStar Store as well as through resellers.